

Coal & Energy Division Scholarship and John Sidney Marshall Memorial Scholarship Guidelines & Procedures

Overview The Coal & Energy Division of the Society for Mining, Metallurgy, and Exploration annually awards scholarships to promising college students who have chosen as a career path the field of mining engineering with an emphasis on coal. There is no limit on the number of applicants that may come from one school or university; however only one Coal & Energy Division Scholarship will be awarded to each Mining Engineering program in any given year.

The John Sidney Marshall Memorial Scholarship, funded by AIME, is administered by the Coal & Energy Division and awarded annually to one or more undergraduate mining engineering students planning to pursue careers in the coal mining industry.

Eligible students may submit one application in consideration for both the Coal & Energy Division Scholarship and the John Sidney Marshall Memorial Scholarship.
